

MISS MARGARET SCHUSTER IS HOSTESS AT A TEA AND LATER AT A DANCE

MISS MARGARET SCHUSTER was hostess at a beautifully appointed tea at the home of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. M. P. Schuster, 621 N. Santa Fe street, from the hours of 3:30 until 5:30 Tuesday. The rooms of the spacious Schuster home were profusely decorated with ivy, roses and pink tulle. In the large reception hall were vases and bowls of Maman Cochet roses. Around the chandeliers were draped pieces of ivy and great bowls of pink tulle. In the sitting room the chandeliers were hung with ivy, and quantities of bowls holding flowers were found here also. To the left of the reception hall was a cozy corner with numbers of sofa pillows and rugs. In the parlor, the piano, bookcases and stands held large vases of roses and ferns. Potted ferns were in evidence in all the rooms.

Cambridge Ice
By CONSTANCE CLARKE.
CAMBRIDGE ICE is an unusually attractive dessert. Take three cups of custard, as below, and when it is cool pour it into the freezer and freeze it to the consistency of a thick butter; add to it two cups of stiffly-whipped cream, one cup of finely cut dried cherries, and one ounce of blanched and very finely shredded pistachio nuts; refreeze and put it into any fancy ice-mould, and let it remain for about four and a half hours. Then turn out the ice in the usual way and serve it for dinner dessert.

Custard—Put into a stewpan three cups of milk, add to it one-half cup of granulated sugar; put it on the stove and bring it to the boil. Then stir it into the raw yolks of five eggs that have been mixed with an eighth of an ounce of ground ginger and a pinch of ground nutmeg. Return it to the stewpan, and stir it on the fire until the mixture thickens; then rub it through a fine sieve, and when cool use as directed.

To-morrow—Baked Weakfish.

BRITAIN VAST SHELL FACTORY
London, Eng., Aug. 15.—Reviewing the work of the munitions department of the government in the house of commons today, Edwin Samuel Montagu, minister of munitions, after telling of the immense increase in output of all kinds of guns and munitions, informed the house that all rifles and machine guns for the armies in the field were being supplied entirely from home sources. The quality of the guns and munitions, he said, was equal to the quantity. This statement, he added, was particularly true of the heavy guns and howitzers.

Mr. Montagu pointed out that half of the engineering resources of the country were used for the navy but declared that very shortly Great Britain would have provided for her own requirements and be able to devote her efforts exclusively to the wants of her allies in regard to machine guns. Already he said, she was sending large quantities of guns and munitions to her allies and in addition was sending to France one third of her production of shell steel and transferring to her allies the entire production of the munitions to the amount of $1,000,000 monthly.

The production of heavy shells, said the minister, had increased 81 percent greater than in 1911. There was now being produced in four days, he declared, as much as was produced in the whole of last year, while there were being turned out every month as many heavy guns as in existence when the minister of munitions was formed, and this number would soon be nearly doubled.
